

Why we located/expanded our Company to Southeast Idaho

"Allstate decided to locate their Customer Service Contact Center in Eastern Idaho (Chubbuck/Pocatello) because of the warm, friendly people, wage rates, limited competition and P&C licensing rates. The people here are very service oriented, they demonstrate a strong work ethic, and a desire to perform at a high level. People are our biggest asset, if you can find the right people and position them for success, your customers will be well cared for and satisfied with the service they receive".

"When we began to look for new manufacturing capacity to support expansion of our modular building business, we looked across western North America, including Washington, Montana, British Columbia and Alberta. We required a large space suitable for a couple manufacturing lines, but more importantly, we needed an available, quality-focused workforce and an economic climate favorable to business. We found all three requirements in Pocatello, Idaho. During our due diligence, we developed relationships with officials representing the municipality. They were eager to help us be successful in establishing our manufacturing in Pocatello. Consequently, our ramp up to operating in the Pocatello facility was painless, and support in hiring local staff resulted in outstanding candidates committed to helping us achieve our business goals."

"Pocatello is a wonderful community, large enough to provide full services and opportunities yet small enough that an individual can make a difference. Nestled in the hills, there are tremendous outdoor opportunities right in the middle of world class and world known features such as Sun Valley, Yellowstone, Park City...Recreational opportunities are tremendous. Pocatello has been a great place to raise my family, with great educational and employment opportunities. Our firm, Myers Anderson Architects works throughout the region and could easily locate anywhere in Idaho, Wyoming, Montana, Oregon or Utah. I chose Pocatello because of the quality of people I have the opportunity to associate with; a dedicated and caring community."

"The owners at Premier were originally from Southeast Idaho and thought about relocating early on in the first years of business. However; it was the great work force and material suppliers that were close by that made the decision to stay. We have been located in Southeast Idaho for all of our 15 years and it couldn't be better. We expanded our facility three years ago by adding two additional manufacturing bays. We had the opportunity to locate the expansion out of state but chose to stay and keep everything on one campus. Not only is Idaho State University and BYU-Idaho close by, we enjoy a low cost of living, friendly communities and the quality of life for our work force can't be beat. Southeast Idaho is our home and we will continue to grow our business and expand our facilities here."
